

Latest Axminster News/PR

HOT SHOT SARAH WINS FIRST PRIZE IN LAMELLO'S CROSSBOW COMPETITION

Product Co-ordinator, Sarah Critchard, recently visited the Lamello factory and offices based in Bubendorf, Switzerland to catch a first glimpse of some new products due to be launched later this year. Together, Sarah and Managing Director, Ian Styles, were part of a group of representatives from several other countries whose companies are all agents for the Lamello range of products.

Sarah and Ian in training at Lamello

L to R: Ian Styles (MD of Axminster Tool Centre), Sarah being presented with her award by Madeleine Kaufmann (organiser) and Simon Hählen who took 2nd place.

Sarah's cow bell award and target card

One evening, as part of Lamello's hospitality, all of their guests were invited to take part in a crossbow competition – the Apfel Schuss Event. Among Sarah's rivals was Simon Hählen, an ex-sharp shooter in the Swiss army but now living in Canada and responsible for the distribution of Lamello over there. Sarah, however, who had never before in her life fired a crossbow, was undeterred. "All it takes is a keen eye and a steady arm" says Sarah, "and do it quickly before your hands start to shake". Participants were presented with the results in reverse order at the dinner which followed. Although Sarah confesses she thought she had done well, she had no idea how well until she was presented with the first prize for the highest number of points scored. Well done Sarah and watch out everyone! Thanks again to Lamello for their kind hospitality and an entertaining time.

June 2010